Bulgarians Begin An Attack on Salonika Railway Near Border

Great Bridge is Threatened by Forty Thousand Troops—Success Would Block Advance of the Allied Forces.

Athens, via Paris, October 16.—Forty thousand Bulgarian troops, with artillery, are reported to have begun an attack on the Haidra bridge between Valandovo, on the railroad running from Salonika into Serbia and Hovdova. The point of attack is about 20 miles north of the Greek border. The Bulgarians apparently are attempting to cut railway communication and prevent the Entente Allies from forwarding troops and supplies for the assistance of the Serbians.

Lighthouses on the Bulgarian coast have been extinguished.

Entrance to the port of Deagadeh, Bulgaria's principal point on the Aegean sea, has been forbidden except in the daytime, when a pilot is required. All Bulgarian ports are said to have been mined.

ARE GOOD FIGHTERS.
Rome, October 16.—A dispatch to the Giornale d'Italia from Cetinje, capital of Montenegro, says the Montenegrins have made such stout resistance to the Austro-German advance along the front that the latter have been compelled to retire and send reinforcements.

It is asserted by the Giornale d'Italia that Bulgaria has notified Greece that she has concluded a treaty with Germany and Austria affecting Greek interests.

INTERNAL TROUBLE.
Milan, via Paris, October 16.—The Bulgarian government has been obliged to resort to stern measures of repression as the result of unrest among the people. It is asserted that the Seculo from Sofia, by way of Bucharest. Many officers of pro-Russian sentiments have been retired from the army.

It is asserted that the Bulgarians are beginning to quarrel about subjects of the Quadruple Entente nations.

An Athens dispatch to the Seculo states that fifty thousand Bulgarians attacked the Serbians on October 14, in the Valadovo region, close to the Greek frontier, and that desperate fighting is now proceeding.

Clearview

The Springvale-Clearview Women's Institute met with Miss J. Trimble last Wednesday. A good number of guests were present and enjoyed two excellent parties by Mrs. Comfort and Mrs. White, Jr., on "What a child should know before going to school." "Co-operation between the home and school." The Institute decided to hold a bazaar in December in aid of the Patriotic Fund.

Bostonians Return To Red Deer

After an absence of one year, the Bostonians, who have long been great favorites here, will open an engagement at the Empress Theatre for two nights, October 21st and 22nd.

They will present "Tippecary Mary," which is well known as one of the most popular musical pieces ever produced. "Tippecary Mary" is made doubly interesting by being given by a cast composed entirely of girls. One might think this was impossible if the abilities of the Bostonians were not too well known to leave any doubt of their being capable of doing almost anything they attempted in the musical line.

British Submarines in Baltic Paralyze German-Swedish Trade

IN THE PAST TWENTY-FOUR HOURS THEY HAVE SUNK FIVE LARGE STEAMERS AND THE LIST GROWS HOURLY.

London, October 13.—A dispatch to Reuters' Telegram Company from Karlskrona, Sweden, says that the German steamer Direktor-Rephenhagen, 1,653 tons, of Stettin, has been torpedoed by a British submarine. The fate of the crew is not known.

HERE'S ANOTHER ONE.
Copenhagen, via London, October 13.—Another German steamer has been destroyed as a result of the British submarine campaign in the Baltic, undertaken to prevent Germany from receiving supplies from Scandinavia. The German steamer Walter Leonhardt, 1,261 tons gross, was blown up and sunk in the Baltic yesterday by a British submarine, after her crew had been permitted to take to the small boats.

DOING FINE WORK.
Stockholm, October 12, via London, October 13.—Activity of British submarines in the southern Baltic has virtually paralyzed what hitherto has been a lively mercantile trade between Sweden and Germany. Along the Swedish coast steamers frequently have been reported in the zones followed by big German ships. Within the last 24 hours five ships of considerable tonnage have been sunk. They were the Lulea, Germania, Nordania, Osteren, and another the name of which is not known.

Baseball

As the wise ones predicted, the red-headed athletes from Beantown decked with the world's championship baseball honors last week, grabbing four out of the five contests from Peck, Moritz and the city of Brotherly Love, through sterling pitching, timely hitting and brilliant defensive play.

In the first contest, with Grover Cleveland on the mound, the Phillies gained a 3-1 verdict over their American League rivals behind Ernest Shore, their 1915 pitcher. "Dode" Paskert, the Quaker centrefielder, featured with a running catch of a home run by the pitcher, that effectively squelched a Red Sox rally.

On Saturday the Bostonians evened things up with a 2-1 victory, largely due to the air-tight twirling and heavy hitting of George Foster.

In the third contest, probably the most sensational of the series, Alexander hooked up in a pitching duel with "Dutch" Leonard, Carrigan's speedy pitcher, and after eight and one-half innings of heart-rending play, lost the decision 2-1, when Duffy Lewis poked a long single to centrefield that sent his team home.

Again on Tuesday Cravath, Luderus at all with Chalmers on the mound, dropped a third loss to the Bostonians by the score of 4-1 as the previous day. Duffy Lewis' fielding and Luderus' batting featured.

In the fifth and last battle, "Colonel" Eddy, pitcher, faced George Foster, supported by many to be Carrigan's best bet, who had won already tucked under his belt, and thanks to Harry Hooper's circuit cut to the centrefield stands in the ninth, lost the decision 5-4. Both teams were out with their clubs and a total of nineteen hits for thirty-four bases were garnered for the slants of the two pitchers, four of which were for four sacks.

The Surprising Canadians

(By Colin McKay in Montreal Standard).

"The Canadians are facing us. They have orders to attack us at a quarter past eight. If they charge with their usual fury, God help us."

The Canadians charged on time, and God did not help the Germans. They captured a trench from the famous Prussian Guards, killed a sergeant-major of a famous regiment of the Prussian Guards, and found on him a diary on which the words quoted above had been written a few hours before.

Evidently the Germans have a fine fear of the Canadians, "the fiercest of all soldiers," as a writer in "Blackwood's," "Maga," the greatest of British magazines, describes them. A few days ago, I was talking with a Prussian prisoner, and he said: "If all our enemies were British, Germany would be beaten. If all our enemies were as fierce and swift as the Canadians, it would soon be good-night to Germany." And his eyes gleamed with hate and admiration. Then he added: "The Prussian Guards do not fear God, man or devil. But they do fear the Canadians."

An N.C.O. of the R.A.M.C. who was mentioned in despatches, and given the D.G.M. for conduct during the retreat from Mons, and who has a row of ribbons gained in the Imperial service all over the earth, said:

"When the Canadians saw their dead at Ypres, all gassed and done up, they went stone mad. They were fair frantic to get at the Germans, and when they got to them with the steel they fought like wild demons. No doubt they had reason to go mad. The Prussian Guards crucified three of them, one head down. A few that the Canadians had no mercy on the Prussians. They were badly cut up, the Canadians, but they got their own back a thousandfold. And yet the Canadians are naturally kind and generous lot; they're on quite good terms with the Saxons."

BRITISH OFFICER'S VIEWS.

A gruff old Irish Colonel said: "Damn, these Canadians are great rascals. Officers and men have queer ideas of discipline. Never make soldiers of them; too blasted independent. Can't teach 'em to fear a British officer, much less the devil and all his angels made in Germany. But they'll go through fire and water and all the Germans this side of hell to get a drink of whisky. But, damn, I'd like to command a regiment of them. We can't win this war with Sunday School boys. An Irish regiment is a tough handful to handle, but I'd enjoy myself with a regiment of Canadians."

An officer of artillery—"If the Canadians were let loose, they'd beat the Prussians at their own game. We get orders to drop shells all around a place; we are not allowed to throw shells into a town for fear we might kill a civilian. So we are ordered to drop shells all around the outskirts of the town where somebody has a dream the Germans have a gun or a billet. A similar order is given to a Canadian battery. The Canadians gunners cut loose, and presently a church tower or a public building gets a knock. A staff officer goes angrily to a telephone and calls up the Canadians, and shouts angrily: "What are you up to. You're shelling the centre of the town!" A mild voice at the other end of the phone answers:

"What's that, sir, speak louder." The staff officer shouts, and keeps a shouting. At last he drops the phone, swearing.

"That badly man must be deaf." An officer is sent over to the Canadian battery, and he starts to blow up the Canadian officer. The Canadian cups his ear.

"Sorry, the concussion has rather numbed my ears."

The staff officer shouts till he is blue in the face. "Well, then, for God's sake, correct. If you knock the town about, you'll have us all court-martialled."

THE SURPRISING CANADIANS.

An English General remarked apropos of a story that the Canadians were worse than the Gurkhas in the little matter of crawling out of their trenches at night with little regard for orders to hunt for snipers or souvenirs:

"Well, the Canadians are an extraordinary lot of men. Don't think they'd make soldiers; quite sure of it now; but they are fighters—first class fighting men. One day I was talking with a Canadian Colonel. Several privates came along, looking as if they owned the world, or didn't care a toss of your hat for anything in it. Big strapping fellows, with bold eyes; very intelligent looking chaps, too. As soon as they saw the Canadian Colonel, they came up, and fell upon him as if he were a long lost brother, calling him "Old Tim." "A sight for sore eyes," giving him a dozen or so very irreverent and altogether unamiable titles. And the Colonel shook hands with them, shook hands with both hands, and seemed immensely pleased. I put up my monocle, and stared at this amazing performance. If I had looked at one of our Tommies in that way, he would have been pulverized on the spot. But these Canadian privates looked at me with half-quizzical, half humorous expression on their careless faces; I believe one of them winked at me. They turned to the Colonel, talking boisterously in a very personal way. And the Colonel talked to them when he was permitted to get a word in edgewise, in the same intimate manner. At last, much to my relief, the privates said "So long," and went off.

MEN NOT MACHINES.

"Well," said I, "do you shake hands with every private you meet?"

"No," said the Colonel, "I don't know every private I meet. But I shake hands with my friends, whether they're privates or what not. At any rate they shake hands with me. These chaps were friends of mine in civil life, and naturally I was glad to see them."

"But an officer is not supposed to make free with the rank and file. How can you have control of men if you treat them as equals?" I asked. "Well, in the first place, I never had any control over those men," said the Colonel. "They're not in my battalion. However, in private life they were my friends; friends to be proud of, though one is a millionaire, all threw up good paying jobs to come out here."

"Humph," said I, "I don't know but what I'd like to shake hands with your high millionaire private myself, if nobody was around."

"The Canadians are the chaps," said the Tommy who had been twelve months at the front. "Fair demons in a charge, and as good snipers as the Germans. Great lads to have control of you in a pinch. Very little discipline as we have it, but their officers get on with them all right. Never heard of a Canadian officer being shot accidentally. Don't worry about red tape. Officers talk with their men, as if they thought they knew something. Our old officer—mostly dead or disabled now—were sports, but the new officers go by the book mostly. Suppose half a dozen of us are on the lookout for a German sniper, and catch sight of him? Hey, shoot before the officer sees him, there's trouble. Maybe the officer is shortsighted. While he is trying to get his eyes on the sniper the German picks off four or five of us. No matter. We've got to wait till the officer sees him and tells us to fire. Damn nonsense. That's not the way with the good old Canadians. When they catch a glimpse of a German sniper they shoot and shoot quick and straight. Canadians are worse than the Gurkhas at getting out of their trenches at night to look for snipers and souvenirs."

And when an officer goes along with them they tell him what to do if he hasn't more experience. And the officer listens to them, too. That's the beauty of the Canadian system: officers and privates are first of all men, not just machines.

—COLIN McKAY.

THE WICKED MAYOR.

Mr. Broughton once more takes his pen in hand and writes to the press. He is a charming old sport, it seems to make him happy, and, well—oh, what's the use? He thinks the Mayor is somewhat of an old fraud and should be decapitated. Agreed. All former Mayors ditto. We agree with him as far as the present Mayor is concerned. He should be severely and severely hung and quartered. The grizzly grey old wretch is an awful old fraud. (We refer to the Mayor, and not Mr. B. of course). If the other poor wretches of ancient history can be found, they should also be captured and sent to "Fenwick," and given a pen to write letters to the press.

Mr. B. is an economist. "Does he not tell us so himself? Economy is his strong suit," he revels in it. From his youth up, we may say, and some time previous, he has economized, has wrestled with it, has slept with it, and will probably stay with the old boy until the day he is laid away in the cold cold ground with a few little pink daisy blossoms on his head, and yet—he was the one lonesome man in the whole of the city of Red Deer who wrote to the press in defence of the expenditure of a quarter of a million dollars for the purchase of the electric light plant only a few short weeks ago.

"Economy," thou art a jewel!"—Shakespeare.

THE GREAT MOVE IN THE WAR

The landing of the forces of the allies at the Greek port of Saloniki looks to us like the big event so far of the war; and evidently it is only a beginning. It would seem rather that the real theatre of the war is to be in the Balkan States, or more likely, in Turkey; and will turn out driving the Turks out of Europe, breaking through the Dardanelles and opening up the Black Sea to Russia.

If this is the likely outcome, Germany and Austria will have to rush large reinforcements to Bulgaria and Turkey; and as soon as that takes place the Russians will begin to concentrate in the same direction, and the allies now in Greece will be strengthened by additional armies from England, France, Italy, probably from India, and perhaps Japan. And, further, if this is to be the theatre of war, Germany and Austria will find themselves not first in the field, but a bad second; and a greater army in front of them and fully equipped with supplies and munitions. In fact, the German and Turkish armies will have no advantage as to preparedness or as to being first on the ground; and will be more or less in danger of being cut off from their bases in Hungary and Austria.

THE MAIN CAUSE OF DISSATISFACTION

According to a local Liberal newspaper, the Grain Growers' Guide, the organ of the Grain Growers' Grain Co., Limited, of Manitoba, has it that "this whole affair of seed grain distribution appears to have been a bungle from start to finish." Undoubtedly this will be news to hundreds of farmers who, from the seed grain supplied by the Dominion government, have been enabled to produce the best yield ever reaped in the western provinces. Of course, it is not to be expected that seed distribution under the Borden government would satisfy the mouthpieces of the Grain Growers' Grain Co. of Manitoba. Nothing that the Borden government ever does will please the partisan aggregation in that company which control the Grain Growers' Guide. There is reason to believe, however, that the Borden government's management of the seed grain distribution is pleasing the farmers much better than the Guide is pleased with, and that that government is giving the farmers a much better deal, year in and year out, than the little coterie of Winnipeg speculators who manipulate the affairs of the Grain Growers' Grain Co. and inspire the utterances of the Grain Growers' Guide.

The News-Telegram will admit that the seed grain distribution was not just as satisfactory as it might have been. We have heard some complaints, and during the past few months we have been looking around for causes. And we unhesitatingly come to the conclusion that the cause for such friction or dissatisfaction there has been is the presence of too many partisan Grit government officials at the head of the department which distributed that grain. While we do not claim to occupy the position of advisor to the Borden government, may we be permitted to offer the suggestion, when there is any similar seed grain distribution in the future, that the government place the work in charge of officials who are in sympathy with the purposes of that government. It is useless to expect satisfaction when certain officials do not want the Borden government to give satisfaction, and when partisan papers like the Grain Growers' Guide think more of making capital against a government to which it is opposed than of the real interests of the unfortunate farmers who have to accept seed grain.—Calgary News-Telegram.

PILES FOR FIFTEEN YEARS

Cured by Zam-Buk

To those who suffer from this painful malady the following letters will be of deep interest. Mr. J. McEwen of Dundas, Ont., writes: "For fifteen years I suffered with piles and could get no permanent cure until I tried Zam-Buk. After having given Zam-Buk a fair trial I found I was getting better, and in the end it completely cured me." Mr. James Ruddy, of Killarney, Ont., says: "I suffered greatly from piles. The pain from these, as any one who suffers from them will know, was at times almost unbearable. I tried first one remedy and then another, but all without effect. The piles still continued as bad as ever. I heard about Zam-Buk and commenced with the treatment. To my great joy, after persevering, I obtained relief from the agonizing pain of the piles. Having been cured by Zam-Buk I heartily recommend the balm to all sufferers from piles."

Why not cure your suffering? Take the advice of the hundreds who have done so and give Zam-Buk a fair trial. This marvelous remedy quickly relieves the suffering, it soothes and heals the inflamed, irritated hemorrhoid veins, and persevering with Zam-Buk effects permanent cure. Every home needs Zam-Buk—accidents will happen, and Zam-Buk is the best "first aid." It quickly takes the sting out of a cut, the fire out of a burn or scald, the soreness from a bruise. Blood-poison or other complication cannot erupt in whom Zam-Buk has been applied. It is a sure cure for piles, eczema, ulcers, children's scalp sores, varicose veins, cold cracks, chapped hands, etc. 50¢ at all druggists and stores, or post-paid from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse substitutes and harmful imitations.

Saturday October 30th inst. is the last day of the five per cent. discount on taxes. The city needs funds for the payment of debenture coupons and other liabilities falling due in the next few days. It is earnestly requested therefore that the taxpayers make a special effort to pay their taxes.

Annual School Sports

A perfect Indian summer day greeted the officials who had in hand on Friday last, the annual field meet of the High and Public Schools, and with its zest and flavor contributed in no small way in making it one of the most successful in the history of the institutions. Students were out en masse, some in gala, some in battle array, and a goodly number of parents and friends also witnessed the feats on the athletic field of their respective progeny or prodigies, but there was plenty of room for improvement in this direction.

Principal Lester and his capable aggregation of assistants pushed the events through with the regularity and precision of clockwork, and an hour before Old Sol had dipped behind the western horizon the events were completed and the grounds deserted, except perhaps for sundry condensation-fitting and shivering with dainties digestible and otherwise for the evening celebration in the assembly hall.

Shades of stalwart athletes who have during the past years carried the red and green to victory, and now do their part on the "battle-field" in procession, and at the university, were aroused by the all-around performances of Wilfrid Addinell, a product of the Calgary "Y," who handily disposed with the majority of the class "A" events, and shivered as far as can be ascertained at least one high school record.

Another was sent soaring when in an exhibition pole-vault Roland Michener, another promising young athlete, easily cleared the bar at 8 feet, 4 inches. One feature, not least among the many that cropped up in the afternoon's programme, was a gruelling tug-of-war, lasting two somewhat可观 minutes, in which Merritt Braton, the heady manager and backstop of the High School baseball club, ably assisted by the only and inimitable Walter Teeling, and half a score other stalwarts, succeeded in out-pulling another brawny aggregation captained by Roy Storteen, the pride of Bentley, despite the presence among their number of such celebrities as Wilfrid Addinell, champion athlete of the University of Toronto, and a prominent citizen of that metropolis to the south of us known as Penhold, and last, but not least, that subterranean Irish-Toronto-ian combination known to the intimate as "Stuffy."

The fair sex did their full share in counting off the various events. Medals will be awarded by the School Board to the boy and girl taking first places in Classes A, B and C. A detailed account follows:

CLASS A. (Pupils of the High School and all others 15 years of age and over.) Boys—1st Wilfrid Addinell, 30 points; 2nd Henry McLean and Fred McElride, tie, 11 points; 3rd Roland Michener, 7 points.

Girls—1st Mildred Sims, 18 points; 2nd Una Dale, 8 points; 3rd Anna Russell, 6 points.

CLASS B. (Pupils of ages 12, 13, 14.) Boys—1st Gordon Norcombe, 25 points; 2nd Robert Munro, 11 points; 3rd Angus McPherson and Victor Michener, tie, 6 points.

Girls—1st Leila Piper, 10 points; 2nd Lalla Galkins, 8 points; 3rd Alpha Parke, 6 points.

CLASS C. (Pupils of ages 9, 10, 11.) Boys—1st Willie Reid, 10 points; 2nd Earl Asmundson, 15 points; 3rd John Asmundson, 6 points.

Girls—1st Lena White, 10 points; 2nd Hattie Peterson, 9 points; 3rd Anne Robertson and Elvina Kelly, tie, 6 points.

CLASS D. (Pupils of ages under 9.) Boys—1st Alan Carswell, 7 points; 2nd Charlie Michener, 3 points; 3rd Willie Pearson and Desmond Tranter, tie, 2 points.

Girls—1st Muriel Wilson, 5 points; 2nd Margaret Davidson, 3 points; 3rd Mary Robertson, Winnie Alford, Freda Krause and Nancy Stephenson, tie, 2 points.

In addition to the regular sports, two hotly-contested basketball games were played by girls' teams. The first, Grade IX vs. Grade VIII, was won by Grade VIII; the second, Grade XI vs. Grade X, was won by Grade XI.

Reading Says Canadians Are Strong in War

British Financier the Guest of Honor at a New York Banquet
New York, October 13.—Lord Chief Justice Reading of England; Basil Blackett, Ernest Mallett and Octave Homberg of the Anglo-French loan commission, were the guests of honor last night of the Canadian club at a dinner in the Hotel Biltmore.C. Olive Bayley, the new British consul general in this city; Sir Arthur Herbert, founder of the British-American relief fund; Capt.
Gaunt, of the Royal Navy; Sir Henry B. Smith, Ernest Thompson Seton, B. Kennard Thompson, Charles Harding, the distinguished English actor, and Royal D. Tracy, of the Canadian military contingent, were also seated at the speaker's table.
About 300 members and guests attended.Behind the loan commissioners hung the flags of this country and Great Britain and the tri-color of France.J. Emery McLean, president of the club, presented a toast "To His Excellency, the President, and His Majesty King George," after which the diners sang "America."

LORD READING CHEERED.

President and Toastmaster J.
Emery McLean introduced Lord Reading, who was wildly cheered for several minutes."It is difficult enough," said Lord Reading, "to address a meeting of Americans who manifest their sympathy with us in this time of stress, and it would be harder to express myself to an audience of Canadians. Looking at the flags and faces about me I am indeed in my own home. I feel that we have exactly the same interests, that we are all in anxiety and also in confidence of the successful outcome of the present conflict. Eight days before I sailed for this country I was in France, and had the pleasure of seeing some of the Canadians there, who were in the pink of condition."
"This war has gone far enough to test the devotion of Canada to the Empire and its cause. Let me assure you this touches the mother country, the devotion all her dominions have shown her. Those who have come from Canada have held extremely high the banner of loyalty and courage. They have well maintained the ideals of liberty which animate every line in the British Empire."

CANADIAN PRIVATE SPEAKS.

Following Lord Reading's brief address he was again wildly cheered and toasted.The guests then sang the Marseillaise, after which M. Homberg arose to thank them in his native tongue.Ets. Royal D. Tracy, of the Canadian contingents who has just returned from the front, was the next speaker. "The world over," he said, you cannot find a better friend than a Britisher or an American.""When the opportunity to retire comes to a Canadian trooper the Canadian says, 'To hell with retiring.'""This war is only going to end one way and that's in favor of the Allies."Private Tracy related many of his experiences in the war and told of cruelties to peasants and outrages on women perpetrated by the German troops. He also spoke of the high spirits and good fellowship among the soldiers of the Allied armies.All patriotic allusions on the part of the speakers were cheered and greeted with cries of "God Save the King" and "Vive la France."early morn, and at dusk Sundays and week days. There are various units also with bivouacs of their own where I go occasionally for Holy Communion Service and other services. During an attack I stay with the doctor, at an advance dressing station, while another chaplain stays at the Main Field Ambulance. The response to the services has been very encouraging, and undoubtedly there is much to be done, for one sees clearly that war alters things in more ways than one, especially when men see their comrades killed suddenly at their side. In one brigade all the officers have been killed or wounded, so you will gather what changes I have seen.Often it has been impossible to bury the dead, for no armistices is given, and until you take the next trench or two many of the dead in the previous attack have to remain unburied. One day we spotted in our sector a number of silent forms with picks on their backs, etc., in a row though in extended order. The breeze blew gently, and the waving grass and flowers moved around them, but they moved not. One of our doctors went out to investigate. He returned soon for the enemy began to drop bullets around him. But he found out who they were, these lifeless bodies of heroic comrades, for the discs were still round their necks, though their features were beyond recognition. That night a burial party with the doctor and myself went out. We got all the discs, covered over the bodies where they lay, held a service at the spot, and returned. Fortunately not much firing was going on, and the bullets that came our way whistled overhead. It was an unforgettable scene, about 32 bodies in all, one that of an officer, men of two famous regiments, who have added more laurels to their splendid record.Two rows of these bodies, some with hand on entrenching tool, in the act of digging in, for the soil was displaced for the death of a few inches. Then probably a machine gun had enfiladed the lot and no doubt in the furious turmoil there was no time to look after these dead. But all with faces going ahead, and when found one line was 400 yards further on. Such is one scene perhaps not typical, but analogous to many we are brought in touch with in this struggle. Now our fellows who have had no proper rest since their landings, are longing for a rest, but it has to be postponed.Perhaps you will know the reason before this letter reaches you. Horses in mules, and some donkeys are used largely in our transport work. The French have some grand Arab steeds who I hope will get through the campaign safely. The weather is excellent though a bit hot. The water supply has been all anyone could desire, which is very fortunate. Poor Creighton is away in hospital suffering from diphtheria. I only heard this yesterday, but was glad to hear he was on his way to recovery.

Letter From The Front

Archdeacon Dewdney has handed us in the following interesting letter from Rev. C. W. G. Moore, former rector of St. Luke's Church, for publication.

Gallipoli Peninsula, Aug. 6th, 1915.

My Dear Archdeacon:
Yesterday I got a fine bunch of letters with yours of July 1st amongst them, the only one from the West, many grateful thanks for it.
Your lay view about the blunder of giving the Turks two months' time to prepare in this Peninsula is quite correct, we are nailing in blood for it now, but I will not discuss that now, though you can understand our feelings, waiting, waiting since the end of February, for the army which landed on April 25th.However things have gone better of late and the Turkish resistance has obviously weakened, but still they bring more and more fresh troops, and quite a stock of ammunition, so the end is not yet.But we are awaiting a new move, which we trust will bring us nearer our much desired goal.The navy will be able once more again to assist the army here, for the monitors are a bit too weak for the submarines, and at present bombardment without the possibility of being submerged, like some of our battleships. I am in my dug out, which is not a palatial place, but at least it affords shade and shelter from the dust, but the flies are legion and one understands how the Hiv-ites dreaded the wrath of Beelzebub.Of course this life has been full of wondrous interest, but sometimes one feels weary, but officers and men keep going so splendidly that the spirit infects all. Probably we chaplains here have a different routine from those in France. For the situation is different, and has undergone many changes. When we first landed on April 25th, we did so at Gaba Tepe, where we were amongst the Australians and the New Zealanders.I had no opportunity to hold any service but the Burial Service. Mind you we had gone ashore to assist for 48 hours, and so were only equipped for that time. However the time was strenuous, constant rifle fire, and sniping of the most unpleasant type, and our fellows in very inefficient trenches, where they were subjected night and day to shrapnel, magazine and rifle fire.We shall never forget that fortnight.
The deeds of heroism done by men in the trenches, and doctors and ambulance fellows, all the time was marvellous. Never during the whole time did I remember any real ease or satisfaction from the firing and crack of rifle bullets.I was allowed to follow along with our fellows, but had only experience of the trenches, in the fire line.
Since then on this part near the French we have had our regular turn in the firing line, and then in the so-called rest camps. I say so-called because some rest camps are under shell fire, which has made them highly unpleasant spots sometimes, for high explosive as well as shrapnel have been employed. Well I join ed one of the doctors, and live with him in the reserve or support trenches when our fellows occupy the firing line. Then I wander round the firing line when things are fairly quiet. A look through the periscope shows me the Turks are awake and active, some 250 yards or less away, for earth is being heaved up, and one gets the glint of shovels. I have held services in a redoubt hut, in rest camps, in dug outs, in the open

In the Willowdale Presbyterian Church, next Sunday, October 24th, at three o'clock, the people are invited to hear the arguments against church union presented by Mr. Brown, the Presbyterian minister in Red Deer. It is the duty of every member and hearer to hear and read all that can be said and written on both sides of this question, so far as it is possible for them to do so.
